FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Venice, March 25. On the 13th of February, the noble Paul Renier, 118th Doge of this republic, died in the 78th year of his age. That the Carnival might not be interrupted, and to allow time for the government to take such necessary steps as his demise required, it was not publicly announced till the second of this month. The effigy of the late Doge was then exposed in one of the apartments of the Palace, in his ducal ornaments. On the 3d, the Grand Council proceeded to the choice of five correctors, appointed to review and correct the statutes, which his successor was to be sworn duly to observe, immediately upon his election.

The solemn obsequies were celebrated the 5th, and the next day began the ceremonies of the election of a new Doge. After the known formalities, with which forty-one electors are chosen, and approved by the Grand Council, they were that up, the 6th, in the Palace of St Mark, where they remained all that day and the following night, and on the next they agreed to elect Doge of the republic, the noble Lewis Manini, Procurator of St Mark, formerly Podesta of the republic to Vincenza and Brezia, Provost General, &c. Though this nobleman, who is 63 years of age, has served the first offices in the magistracy, he was not expected to have been elevated to the supreme dignity; nor had he been named among those candidates, whom the public report had marked out.

His family, though powerful in their fortunes, are not among the most ancient in the Republic; they came from Friuli to Venice in 1651, after one of their ancestors had advanced a sum of 100,000 ducats for the expenses of the war in which the republic was then involved.

On the 10th, was performed the ceremony of the coronation, which was followed by public entertainments and rejoicings. On the 15th, the new Doge first presided at the Grand Council, which forms the sovereignty of the republic; to whom he delivered a speech, thanking them for his election.

The 16th, that assembly filled the office of procurator of St Mark, vacated by their new president, with the Chevalier Sebastian Mocenigo, formerly ambassador to Spain and France, and now governor of the province and city of Verona: The same evening, and the two following days, the new procurator gave entertainments to the nobility, in his palace, and distributed bread, wine, and money, to a numerous concourse of people. To-day, we celebrate the anniversary of the foundation of Venice, which has now subsisted thirteen centuries and a half: The Doge goes to the Cathedral with all the pomp of his new dignity.

General Lafcelles, who lately received a regiment of horse, is in high favour with the King: his Majesty wishing him to reside near Windsor, the General is about to leave his house at Ealing, and live during the summer in that neighbourhood.

Miss Catley has been for several years married to General Lafcelles, by whom she has five children. In all the duties of a wife and a mother, she is exemplary, and has conducted herself ever since she has been Mrs Lafcelles, with uncommon propriety.

It is worthy of remark, that the 23d of April, which is St George's Day, is the birth day of Shakespeare. That the Poet, who is the pride of his country, should be born on the day of the patron Saint of the country, is an odd incident.

Easter Monday, the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen Crosby, Wright, Clark, Newnham, Sainsbury, Burnell, Eldaile, Plomer, Pickett, Boydel, Hopkins, Watson, Skinner, Macaulay, and Anderfon, together with Sheriffs Curtis and Hammett, went in procession, with the boys of Christ's and Bridewell Hospitals, to St Bride's church, where a sermon was preached by one of the bishops. They afterwards proceeded to the mansion-house, where an elegant entertainment was prepared by the Lord Mayor.

About 400 sat down to dinner in the Egyptian hall, which was magnificently decorated on the occasion; the dinner consisted of all the rarities and delicacies of the season. After dinner, the Lady Mayorefs, and the other Ladies, retired to the ball-room, and the Gentlemen to the adjoining rooms, where the tables were plentifully provided with burgundy, champagne, claret, port, &c. Several persons of distinction, and almost all the Foreign Ambassadors, were present.

Yesterday a Court of Aldermen was held at the Mansion-house. Present, the Lord Mayor and sixteen Aldermen. The Lord Mayor communicated to the Court a letter he had received from the Right Hon. the Earl of Salisbury, Lord Chamberlain of his Majesty's Household, informing him it was the intention of his Majesty to come to St Paul's Cathedral on the 23d inst. and desiring that the same form might be observed by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, &c. in meeting his Majesty on his entrance into their city at Temple Bar as had been usual on similar occasions. The Court agreed to appoint a deputation of the six following Aldermen, viz. Newnham, Wright, Pickett, Watson, Skinner, Curtis, and Sheriffs to confer with the Lord Chamberlain on the proper mode to be adopted to receive his Majesty. The Court made several orders relative to the procession, viz. for receipts to issue to the Aldermen of the Wards of Farringdon Without, Farringdon Within, Cattlebaynard and Cheap, for all their Constables to be out on that day, and for the passages leading into the streets of their city, through which the procession is to pass, to be stopped by bars, and guarded by constables to prevent the carriages obstructing the procession. They also recommended to the Lord Mayor to direct that no buildings might be erected in the fronts of any houses.

The following is stated to be the order of the Procession of their MAJESTIES, attended by both Houses of Parliament, and all the Great Officers of State, to St Paul's.

The Speaker, in his robes, seated in the State Carriage, with his Mace Bearer and Chaplain, and accompanied by the House of Commons in coaches, will set out from Palace Yard at a quarter after eight o'clock on the 23d instant, pass through the entrance at the Horse Guards into St James's Park, go out at the Stable Yard, and range along Pall Mall and Charing Cross, followed by three Knight Marshalls, Clerk of the Crown, Masters in Chancery, and the Twelve Judges, in the capacity of Assistants to the House of Peers.

The Lord High Chancellor, in his robes of State, accompanied by all the Lords in coaches, following in the order of precedence, according to their respective titles, the Youngest Baron going first and the Senior Duke bringing up the rear. The Peers will be robed, and such as are knights of the Garter, Bath, and Thistle, in the collars of their different orders.

Sir Sydney Meadows, Knight and Marshal, on horseback, attended by his men in their proper uniform.

The Gentlemen Ushers, in one of the King's coaches, drawn by six horses.

The Duke of Montague, as Master of the Horse, in another of the King's coaches, accompanied by the Gold Stick in waiting. This carriage will also have six horses.

A Troop of Horse Guards, which will be followed by the Duke of Chandos, as Lord Steward of the Household, in a King's coach and six horses, accompanied by the Earl of Salisbury, Lord Chamberlain of the Household, Earl of Aylesford, Captain of the Yeomen of the Guards, and Earl of Leicester, Captain of the Band of Gentlemen Pensioners.

Four Ladies of the Bedchamber, in a coach and six belonging to her Majesty; Lady Holderness, Lady Weymouth, Lady Pembroke, Lady Harcourt.

Four Maids of Honour, in a coach and six belonging to her Majesty; Miss Beauchamp, Miss Vernon, Miss Tryon, Miss Jefferys.

His Majesty's Footmen, walking two and two in their State Livery.

The King and Queen, in the State Coach, drawn by eight horses, and followed by a Troop of Horse Guards, who will close the procession.

The streets, from the Palace to Temple Bar, will be lined on each side by the Westminster militia, aided in the difficult task of preserving order among the populace by all the Westminster and Middlesex Constables, under the command of the Sub-Sheriff and High Bailiff.

Within-side Temple Bar, the Artillery Company will be ranged on each side of Fleet-street and Ludgate-hill to St Paul's, the city-officers of the peace assisting to preserve order.

Two companies of foot guards are to do duty within-side the Cathedral, and at the doors.

The Lord Mayor will meet their Majesties at Temple Bar, where he will deliver to the King the Sword of the city, and which his Majesty will deliver to his Lordship.

The Court of Aldermen will accompany the Lord Mayor, attended by the Sheriffs, all in their gowns of office, and the Sword will be carried by the Lord Mayor immediately before his Majesty's coach, the Aldermen walking two and two, and the Common Council in their gowns, making part of the city procession, before the Aldermen.

At the west door, the Peers in their robes, attended by the Kings at Arms and other officers, will meet their Majesties, the Gentlemen Pensioners being all in waiting.

The Sword of State will then be carried before the King and Queen into the choir, where, under a canopy, their Majesties will seat themselves on the Throne of State, near the west end of the choir, opposite the altar.

The Area is to be appropriated to the accommodation of the Peers, and the Stalls will receive the Commons.

The Upper Galleries on each side receive the Ladies of her Majesty's Bedchamber, the Maids of Honour, and such other Ladies of high distinction as may attend on the occasion.

The Lower Galleries next the Throne will be honoured with the Foreign Ambassadors, and, next the Altar, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen.

The Choir fit in the organ loft.

The Residuary Minor Canons will chant the Litany and the Prayers; and Te Deum, with some new anthems, will be sung by the choir.

The Charity Children, who are supported by voluntary contribution, will have a place appropriated for their appearance, much in the same manner as at their anniversary meeting.—This is at the particular desire of her Majesty.

The Bishop of London is to preach the sermon on this glorious occasion.

The Church service being over, the procession will return in the same manner in which it came, the coaches having turned about, and got into regular order against that time.

The Tower Guns will be fired, and answered by the Park Guns, first, on setting out from the Palace; second, when Te Deum is sung; and, third, when their Majesties arrive at the Palace from the Cathedral.

Suppose a coach in a procession takes two minutes to draw up, set down and draw off, 500 coaches will take seventeen hours. Therefore, when the King goes to St Paul's, if the first coach arrives there and sets down at ten o'clock on Thursday morning, the last coach of 500 would not arrive there and set down till three o'clock on Friday morning.

The famous Abbe de Raynal is now living at Marseilles, in the 76th year of his age. He was requested by that city to be their representative at the States General, but excused himself on account of his age and infirmities. The following is an extract of a letter he wrote to the Magistracy, as an apology for not accepting their offer:—

"Gentlemen,

"I am now in my 76th year, and four months tedious sickness has deprived me of the small remains of physical, as well as moral strength of mind, which age had left me. The least reflection weakens my enfeebled nerves. You will from thence judge that, under these circumstances, I can neither fulfil the functions of being your representative, with the dignity which is due to you, or, if I may be allowed to say it, to myself."

A correspondent, to whom the following anecdote of Sterne has been mentioned in a quarrel where he should conceive that it could not avoid bearing the stamp of authenticity, begs leave, in justice to the fine feelings of humanity, to render more public, through the channel of your paper, soon after he had taken possession of the living of Coxwold, in Yorkshire, to which he was preferred by the late Earl of Fauconberg, a poor but worthy widow, at the point of death, desired that her last moments she might receive the Sacrament. The sentimental Yorick obeyed the summons; and when the solemn ceremony was concluded, with a benevolent smile: "What do you intend leave me in your will for this trouble?" a wanton manner. This riot concluded the performance of the evening, and may perhaps be of serious consequences to the interest of the property.
This morning we were informed, that the traders to the Levant daily receive alarming accounts of the tumultuous state of affairs in Turkey. The war with Russia is highly unpopular; and the loss of Oczakow has driven the people to madness in Constantinople. The Palace of the Grand Vizir has been reduced to ashes. The gallant services of this great officer, during the late campaign, could not make his countrymen forget, that it was through his influence that the Divan was prevailed upon to declare war against Russia.
The last accounts from Sweden say, that the officers who were taken up on account of refusing to fight in Finland, and entering into a confederacy with Russia, were now on their trials at Stockholm, and several others at Gothenburgh, for not repel-ling the entry of the Danes. It was expected some of the former would suffer death as an example, though the ringleaders have escaped to Russia.
A Court Martial at Gothenburgh has condemned to death the Swedish Colonel who commanded at Quilstrom, where the Danish troops under the Prince of Hesse first effected an entrance into the Swedish territories.
A project of vast importance is said to be in agitation in Germany, the King of Prussia being desirous to exchange his dominions on the Baltic, for the Electorate of Saxony, and to render the electoral family hereditary Kings of Poland. Should this project be crowned with success, that extensive and fertile country would be delivered from the tumultuous anarchy, which has long disturbed it at home, and rendered its force contemptible abroad.
The condition of twelve millions of wretched peasants would be rendered more tolerable; and two great kingdoms, that of Prussia and Poland, would be rendered still greater, and enabled to exert their united force for restraining the ambition of Austria and Russia.
We are informed, that Sir Henry St John's park keeper, at Dogmersfield-park near Odham, Hants, who shot six pigeons flying out of ten, with a single ball, has since, to decide a bet, hit a cricket ball with common shot twelve times successively, bowled betwixt the wickets by Harris, one of the fastest bowlers in the Hamilton Club.
On the 2d of March died, at Halifax in Nova Scotia, Dr George Frederick Boyd, surgeon of his Majesty's late 84th regiment of foot.
A very curious case occurred on Monday at Bow Street; the particulars of which are shortly as follow:
John Burton produced at the banking-house of Messrs. Hoare in Fleet Street, a bill, dated London, April the 1st 1789, signed J. Goodricke, payable on demand to the order of John Smith, for 800l. directed to Messrs. Hoare, bankers, Fleet Street, and required payment for the bill, alledging he was to receive it for Mr Smith, the person to whom it was payable.
A doubt arose in the mind of the Clerk, whether the signature was of the hand-writing of the Right Honourable Sir John Goodricke, Baronet, an old Gentleman, who had for forty years kept cash at the house of Messrs. Hoare. It was inspected by others, and, on reflecting, that the Right Hon. Baronet was often afflicted with the gout, they concluded it was not improbable the character of his hand writing might be in some respects altered. In consequence of that circumstance, after some discourse with the person who fought the payment, they gave him the following bank-notes, viz. one, No. 292, dated the 14th of February for 500l.; and another, No. 954, dated the 25th of February, for 300l.— The prisoner then witnessed the bill with the name of Brewer.
On the same day, he went to Bowman and Company's, bankers, Lombard Street, and desired to open an account with them; which, after some conversation with one of the partners, he did, by giving them 800l. and taking out bank-notes for 200l. saying, the remaining 600l. should continue in the bankers hands for some time. He then went down to Gravesend, and continued there until Monday, with a woman, who cohabited with him for some time. On their arrival at the banking house of Messrs. Bowman and Co. they were secured, the bill for 800l. on Messrs. Hoare having been discovered to be a forgery.
When the prisoner appeared at the public office, he was brought forward as near as possible to Sir John Goodricke, who sat in the window. Sir John was astonished to see brought before him for such an offence, a person who had been so much the object of his bounty; for Sir John said, he knew the prisoner very well, and that a short time ago he had procured for him a very eligible employment; and, in order to encourage and enable him to make a gentle commencement, he lent him 40l. and, at the same time, gave him another 40l. This the prisoner admitted; but said, he received the bill in question of Mr Smith, the person to whom it purports to be payable.
All the parties who attended to give their evidence, were then bound over to prosecute, and the prisoner was committed to take his trial for the forgery.
In the evening of Monday, Burton was again examined for the forgery above-mentioned; he has confessed the whole of the business, and where the property is, which will be all recovered, with no other loss than about twenty-four pounds.
It is in a chest at Gravesend, the woman with whom he cohabited is gone down with one of the officers to bring it up.
Sir John having sent him for cash to the house before, was the cause of the forgery being so easily completed.
—The lady was partial to the philosopher, and the philosopher was partial to the lady. They once crossed the Frith from Kinghorn to Leith together, when a violent storm rendered the passengers apprehensive of a salt-water death; and her Ladyship's terrours induced her to seek consolation from her friend, who, with infinite jang freid, assured her, "he thought there was great probability of their "becoming food for the fishes!"—"And pray, "my dear friend," said Lady W—"e, "which "do you think they will eat first?"—"Those who "are gluttons," replied the historian, "will un"doubtedly fall foul of me; but the epicures will "attack your Ladyship."

Dublin, April 9. Yesterday Mr L'Estrange, the Deputy Sergeant at Arms, who was sent as Delegate from the House of Commons with the Address to the Prince of Wales, arrived in Dublin with his Royal Highness's answer, of which the following is a copy:
"GENTLEMEN,
"Being fully convinced of the loyal and affectionate attachment which you have shewn to his Majesty, I shall say nothing to you in congratula-tion upon the continuation of his health; and I should do injustice to the principles upon which you have acted, if I presumed to recommend to you the same honourable duty, loyalty, and affection to his person and government, which has so strongly appeared in all your proceedings; by a perseverance in this line of unexampled conduct, you will not fail to awaken the sensible remembrance of his Majesty, and you may be assured that I can never forget it.
"I shall not pay so ill a compliment to the Commons of Ireland, as to suppose that I had not an understanding to comprehend the full value of those extraordinary proofs of affection towards me. An honourable heart, animating the warmth of regard towards those to whom it feels obliged, furnishes the most powerful motive for the continuance of those feelings; at the same time, that the singular liberality with which you have conferred this obligation, reflects the same honour upon me as upon yourselves, and is equally entitled to his Majesty's approbation."
"Sir,
"With these impressions I am happy in taking leave of you, though personally I must regret your departure; for I should not do justice to my feelings, if I did not express the veneration which I bear to your private character. I have had an opportunity of cultivating your acquaintance, and it has added to the high esteem which I had before entertained for your public merits; both have made you the honourable and respectable Delegate and Representative of the body from which you are sent."

WIND AT DUBLIN, APRIL 15.
EDINBURGH.
Monday last, was married at Dumfries, John Kirkpatrick, Esq; of Otfend, merchant, to Miss Stothart, daughter of Thomas Stothart, Esq; of Arkeland.
This week, ripe peaches, nectarines, grapes, and strawberries, were gathered in the gardens of the Hon. Baron Stewart at Moredun, as also ripe fruit of the Eugenia Jambos, or Pomey Rose, the first tree of the kind that has fruited in this country.
Yesterday, the Elizabeth, Samson, arrived at Leith from London.
The Sufanna, Bogle, from Virginia to Jamaica, was lost on Hispaniola.
The Friendship, Nixon, is arrived at Rotterdam, from Charleston.
Betsey and Brothers, Dunnet, at Jamaica, from Leith.
Cattlefemple, Buchanan, at ditto, from Clyde.
Rusell, Hawkes, at Havre-de-Grace, from Virginia.
Margaret, Blain, at New York, from Clyde.
On Wednesday morning last, the body of one Thomas Dickson, formerly an opulent brewer in Leith, was found above North Leith Bridge. He had gone out, the preceding evening, at a back-door of a brew-house that leads to the water, instead of the fore one, and was unfortunately drowned.
Wednesday afternoon, the body of a man was found in the Great Canal, a little east from Calder.
From several marks of violence discovered upon it, there is the greatest reason to suspect he had been murdered, and afterwards thrown into the water.
While all strangers admire the beauty and regularity of the New Town, they are surprised at its being so badly lighted and watched at night. What is remarkable, the half of the North Bridge next the Old Town, is well lighted, while the half next the New Town remains in total darkness. In London and Westminster, the streets are lighted all the year through.
The Treasurer of the Dumfries and Galloway Infirmity has received from his Grace the Duke of Queensberry, by the hands of John Macmurdo, Esq; his Chamberlain, Fifty Guineas, as a donation towards building the asylum for lunatics, now adding as a wing to the Infirmary.
His Grace the Duke of Queensberry has presented Mr Edward Neilson, preacher of the Gospel, to the parish of Kirkcaldy, vacant by the death of the Rev. Mr James Alexander.
Mr James Grant preacher, is presented to the church and parish of Liberton, in the presbytery of Edinburgh, vacant by the death of the late Rev. Mr White.
On Tuesday last the Reverend the Provincial Synod of Glasgow and Ayr met at Glasgow, and was opened with a suitable sermon by Mr Thomas Pollock of Kilwinning, moderator: after which, Mr John Monteath jun. of Neilson was chosen Moderator. The Synod unanimously voted a congratulatory address to the King upon his restoration to perfect health, and the exercise of his royal authority.

Said address transmitted to the Lord Advocate to be presented.
An overture for augmenting the benefices of Scotland from the vacant stipends was laid before the Synod, and transmitted to the General Assembly.
An appeal from the parish of Ardrossan, relative to the settlement of Mr John Duncan, as minister of that parish, was next brought before the Synod.— After much debate, the whole affair was referred simpliciter to the next General Assembly.
The Committee for overtures transmitted to the Synod an overture, bearing, "That whereas there was a fama clausa, that in some late publications of the Rev. Dr William McGill, one of the Ministers of the establishment in the town of Ayr, there were contained certain doctrines contrary to the Word of God, the Confession of Faith, and his ordination vows, that the Synod should take this matter into their serious consideration, and make such enquiry into the grounds thereof as to them shall seem proper." After a pretty long debate, the Synod approved of the overture, and enjoined the Presbytery of Ayr to enquire whether there were sufficient grounds for said fama, and to report to next Synod. Against which judgment several Ministers protested for liberty to complain to the next General Assembly.
We do not hear that there was any other business of a public nature before the Synod.
At the debate in the Pantheon on Thursday last, on the question, "Whether has Poetry, Painting, on Music, greatest Influence over the Passions?"— the company was in point of number and respectability, nearly the same as on Thursday preceding.— Speakers, 13.—Decided in the affirmative of Poetry.
This debate may justly be ranked among those that have done equal honour to the Speakers, and to the Institution.
On the 12th instant, the prison of Jedburgh was broke, and Joseph Smith, alias Clarkson, who was so have been tried at the ensuing Circuit for housebreaking and theft, made his escape.
There is at present living, and has resided in the town of Kilmarnock, Ayrshire, these forty-nine years, one John Craig carrier, aged 105. He bore arms in the North British Dragoons in the year 1715, and was in the service 16 years. He still earns his daily bread by his own labour, never complaining of a fore head, and remains a bachelor; he takes his bottle freely at night with his old companions, and hopes to live many years longer.
There is now living at a place called Pillnear, near Newton-Stewart, in Cumberland, one William Marshall, a travelling tinker, who is in the 116th year of his age, and continues to follow his business. He is more active than most men at 60, has an unusual flow of spirits, entertained the writer of this account about a fortnight ago with a song, and expresses the reasonable hope of living twenty years longer.
There is just now in the possession of James Mackaig, farmer at Dalwhinton, an ewe, which had six lambs in the space of fourteen months, viz. two in January 1788, one in October following, and three in the first of April 1789; which last are living, and likely to thrive.
It seems impossible for the Irish nation to write without making bulls, even in papers, which, it may be supposed, were framed after mature deliberation.
The following paragraphs are copied verbatim from the address of the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Commons, and Citizens of Dublin, in Common Council assembled, inserted in the London Gazette:
"The worth of a Sovereign so mild, a Parent so provident, and a Friend so true, was never before so fully understood, until he was left for ever; but it is the peculiar blessing of your faithful subjects, that they are awakened to a due sense of your Majesty's great and endearing qualities, ere it is too late, and whilst our country continues to prosper under their benign influence.
"Return then, Sirs, with renovated vigour of mind and body, to attain the glorious ends to which your auspicious reign has been directed; live long the Supporter of the Law, the approved Patron and Defender of Civil and Religious Liberty." How our most gracious Sovereign is to return with renovated vigour, to live long the Supporter of the Law, after being left for ever, we leave to the Lord Mayor, Common Council, and Citizens of Dublin to find out.
Extract of a letter from Haddington, April 17.
"Our weather now is remarkably good; and as I have been through the most part of the county, from Abellady to Dunblair, I observe all kind of corn springing very well; even barley is above ground."
Extract of a letter from Dumfries, April 15.
"The Circuit Court of Judicary was opened here upon Monday the 13th current, by the Right Hon. Lords Justice Clerk and Hailes, when John Kelly, lately residing in Chinney, in the parish of Troqueer; John Kelly, his son; James Keeling, formerly residing in Lurgan, in Ireland; Andrew Caldwell, sometime servant to Alexander Maitland of Valleyfield; and Edward Wallace, sometime servant to Solomon Wilkinson, tenant in Largs, all accused of theft;—and Peter Muir, late residenter in Dumfries, accused of forgery, were fugitated for not appearing to stand trial.
"John Carmichael and Robert Legger, both journeymen shoemakers in Dumfries, accused of house-breaking and theft, were both found guilty, and condemned to be hanged upon the 27th May next.
"Thomas Watling, painter or limner in Dumfries, accused of forging the notes of the Bank of Scotland, petitioned for transportation, and he was sentenced to transportation for fourteen years; under certification of whipping and re-transportation, in case of return before expiry of that period. In this case, some particular circumstances, and the absence of two material witnesses, induced the prosecutors to consent to this sentence.
"Edmund Walton, sergeant in the Third or Prince of Wales's regiment of Dragoon Guards, was accused of hameficken.—The libel was restricted to an arbitrary punishment and he being found guilty, was sentenced to three months imprisonment, and to find security to the extent of 500 marks Scots, to keep the peace for two years.— There was no other business to come before the Court, who set out for Jedburgh to-morrow morning."

Extract of a letter from Stirling, April 16.
"The Circuit Court of Judicary was opened here on Tuesday the 14th current, by the Right Hon. Lord Edgemoor; Andrew Paton, tenant in Cambus Mill, and Robert and William Paton his sons, accused of theft.—The Advocate Depute restricted the libel to an arbitrary punishment.—The panels being found guilty, Andrew Paton is sentenced to banishment for life, and transportation and service for seven years; William Paton to be banished Scotland for seven years, and Robert Paton for five years.
"John Henderson in Tullibody, accused of culpable homicide, was, by a plurality of voices of the assize, found not guilty, and was therefore absolved and dismissed.
"James McNab, late in Cambusbarron, accused of theft, petitioned for banishment, which being consented to by the Advocate Depute, he is accordingly banished forth of Scotland for seven years.
"A prosecution was brought at the instance of George Scrymgeour of Thornhall, against William Walker, distiller at Little Kerse, for an assault.
The assize in one voice found the libel not proven.
William Walker was thereupon dismissed and affirmed.
Extract of a letter from Dundrennan, April 10.
"In the evening of the 7th current, a middle aged woman with two children, a girl seemingly about twelve, and a boy about two years old, came into a farmer's house in this parish, asking charity and lodging for the night. She was taken into the barn, with materials for her bed, and desired to make it where she pleased: The spot the had fixed on, was along the side of what they call a bing, or musshuck of unwinnowed corn, which some time during the night, most unfortunately overthrew, and smothered to death the whole three. Next day, coffins, and the usually necessary tinsens, were prepared; and on the day following, they were accompanied to the church-yard by about thirty of the people; and decently interred.
"The imperfect account the had given of herself to the family was, that she was born in England; was carried to Ireland by her father, who was by trade a weaver: That she was married in that country, and came over to Scotland some time ago with her husband, who died lately of a decline, and left her with four children; being reduced to the last extremity, she left two of the children with an acquaintance in Stranraer, (the only place in which she could say she had any residence,) and with the other two, the eldest and youngest, she had set out about a month since, for the first time, to beg subsistence in the country. She was pretty tall; had black hair, and spoke English much better than the commonalty in this country. Her own name was not learnt; but she had said to some who had the curiosity to enquire, that the girl's name was Ber-ty, and that of the boy, Moses Thomson. There were found in her pocket three shillings and threepence halfpenny; but all the clothes that were on the whole three were good for nothing; exhibiting the strongest indications of the most abject poverty.
If there are any relations alive capable of being interested in the above, they will please accept of this intimation, through the channel of your paper."

IMPROMPTU, on receiving a Present of Apples from a Female Friend.
WHEN granum Eve her husband tempted With golden pippin, sweetly scented, (This pippin by the devil painted), We may suppose he argued some time Before he yielded to his wife's whim:
But had the offer'd fruit so musty As I got from my coz, Nell Crosby, In Moses' book another tale we'd find; He'd said his wife—and thereby sav'd mankind.

To the Printer of the Caledonian Mercury.
S I R,
I find that your paper gives a just tribute of applause to the merits of Mr King.—The crowded audiences he has drawn to the Theatre this winter, fully evince his eminent merit as a performer.—He has been long a favourite with the Public; and the justness of his action, and most astonishing command of features, will always ensure him success. At the same time, Sir, I do not wish that your paper should damn with faint praise, by not mentioning at the same time, how admirably he is supported by Mrs Barresford's performance.—Her merits as an actress are universally allowed; and, for my own part, I cannot say that ever I saw her in any character she did not support according to my most sanguine expectation. Mr King's Sir Peter, and her Lady Teazle, was as complete a piece of acting as one could see within the walls of a Theatre.—In justice to her merit, I hope you, Sir, will freely excuse the trouble I give, by now offering my sentiments to you, in which I am far from being singular; and I ever remain,
